Surprise: EI claims are up 3.4%

Jobs. A startling stat since the province is currently relying upon many out-of-province workers for labour

JEFF MACKEY
jeff.mackey@metronews.ca

The Harper Conservatives came under fire Thursday, moments after introducing new rules that would force the jobless seeking employment insurance to take lower-paying jobs — for some, in unrelated occupations.

The changes to the employment insurance program will impact all jobless Canadians who apply for benefits — including those here in Saskatchewan, where Statistics Canada reports we had a 3.4 per cent increase in claims during March, while the national average remained stable.

This is a surprising statistic considering Saskatchewan is currently relying on many out-of-province and out-of-country workers to keep up with demand for labour.

The changes will create three tiers of EI recipients based on the frequency of an individual's EI collection. This will force frequent recipients to accept much-lower pay than that of their previous employment. The changes are expected to take effect in early 2013.

The Canadian Federation of Independent Business (CFIB) supports the move. "We believe the changes to defining suitable employment, based on how frequently EI is claimed, will help to remove disincentives to work and hopefully make it easier for small firms to find the people they need," said CFIB president Catherine Swift.

Swift also said, under the current system, 19 per cent of small-business owners in Saskatchewan said they had difficulty hiring because applicants would rather stay on EI benefits, while another 12 per cent said they had been asked by an employee to lay them off so they could collect benefits.

Others are hesitant about the changes. "We need to make sure that this is not a scenario of ideology trumping common sense," said Trent Wotherspoon, the NDP MLA for Regina Rosemont. "These are not government dollars, these are dollars that have been invested by employees, by workers and by employers."

CP workers picket over proposed pension cuts

Striking. CP Railway aiming to reduce pension, increase shifts from 10 to 12 hours, cut retirees' benefits

CARRIE-MAY SIGGINS
carriemay.siggins@metronews.ca

Letter of support to feds

- Saskatchewan Minister of Energy and Resources Bill Boyd sent a letter of support to Lisa Raitt Wednesday.
- He says the longer the strike continues, the more the impact will be felt in Saskatchewan industries.
- "Agriculture will be significantly impacted," he said in the letter. "Potash sales will be impacted dramatically; they ship just-in-time shipments to the West Coast for delivery around the world."

Thirty-five Canadian Pacific Railways workers picketed in Regina Thursday as part of the strike against proposed changes to the CP pension plan.

About 20 of those workers, wearing sandwich boards, braved the rain to picket in the mud outside the CP rail yards on Dewdney Avenue.

"What we're striking for is to keep what we already have," said Brad Wiszniak, local chairman of yardmen, conductors and trainmen for Teamsters Regina.

CP is aiming to reduce workers' pension income by up to 40 per cent, including rolling back on pension earned.

It also wants to increase shifts from 10 to 12 hours, as well as cut benefits for all retirees past 65 years of age.

Dave Hariniuk, who was picketing at the rail yards Thursday, is vice-president for conductors in Moose Jaw.

He says that when dealing with 12-hour shifts, fatigue is a big deal, as is the unsteady work-life balance when workers are constantly on call.

But both Hariniuk and Wiszniak agree that there probably wouldn't be a strike if not for the pension cuts.

Hariniuk says that pensions are in part calculated by a best-of-five-year formula, to be a percentage of a worker's maximum earnings for a year. CP wants to cap that at $20,000 less than that highest wage.

"If you're making $75,000 a year on your maximum potential earnings, they're going to base your pension on (a percentage of) $55,000 instead. They're knocking a huge chunk off."

Wiszniak says that workers who have been loyal to CP for up to 35 years are devastated at the prospect of seeing their pensions cut.

"I can understand making concessions that from this point forward, everyone starts under a premise and continues under that premise," adds Hariniuk. "But to take something away from people who have been working under that premise for so long, it's criminal, I think."

Wiszniak adds: "When I hired on, that was the one thing everyone said. The life of a railroader is not a great life, but when you retire you have a good pension and that was one of the main reasons to hire on here at the railway."

Federal Labour Minister Lisa Raitt has said that if negotiations are still stalled Monday, back-to-work legislation may be introduced. It has been estimated that if the strike continues, it could cost the Canadian economy $500 million a week.

APTN's Aboriginal Day lineup features Saskatchewan talent

This year, the Aboriginal People Television Network's (APTN) Aboriginal Day Live concert will have stages in both Regina and Winnipeg.

The concert, which runs in two cities each year, will feature performances and celebrations from a good deal of Saskatchewan talent. The event will be hosted by DJ-actress Crystle Lightning and actress-producer Jennifer Podemski.

"The concert of Aboriginal Day Live is that we want it to be a national platform," said Sky Bridges, chief operating officer of APTN. "It was time to bring it out to the West and we thought that Regina would just be an excellent place to be."

The concert will feature the Local Onlyz, a Regina-based instrumental hip-hop group, as well as Buffy Sainte-Marie. Also included in the lineup are musical acts like Plex, Samian, Riva, Steve Salas and Bernard Fowler.

A second festival will run simultaneously in Winnipeg with an entirely different lineup.

"Every time we look at our artist lineup we have a mixture of Métis, Inuit and First Nations," said Bridges "But whenever we are at a specific stage (venue), we always make sure that there is a little bit more programming that is dedicated towards the region and the lineup we unveiled today is a reflection of that.

Singer-songwriter Riva, of the Timiskaming Algonquin First Nation, performs at the announcement of the Regina lineup for the Aboriginal Day Live, at the First Nations University on Thursday. The concert will tale place on June 23 and Riva is one of the featured performers. JEFF MACKEY/METRO

New candidate for Ward 1

John Klein, 32, has announced his candidacy for councillor of Ward 1.

Klein is an IT professional at the University of Regina and president of the Regina Car Share Co-operative, "a growing Saskatchewan co-op designed to provide additional transportation service to Regina," according to his website.

Originally from Wood Mountain, Klein moved to Ward 1 in 1998 while studying at the U of R, and continues to live there with his wife and two dogs.

Klein gained attention for his political blog Saskboy's Abandoned Stuff, which has been cited as one of Canada's top political blogs at various times during the 10 years he's been writing it. Klein is also an outspoken environmentalist and advocate for sustainable development.

Immigration. Meeting to address concerns over changes to program

The debate surrounding changes to Saskatchewan's immigration policy will continue Friday with a town-hall meeting at the South Hall Leisure Centre at 7 p.m.

The meeting, hosted by a committee of impacted immigrant communities, will discuss the immigrant communities' response to changes to Saskatchewan's Immigrant Nominee Program (INP).

"We will discuss the options and possibilities of what we can do, what we can achieve — also what our efforts to pass on information and our concern to authorities have been," said Syed Mozzam, general secretary of the Pakistan Canadian Cultural Association of Regina.

The changes to the program make it more difficult for immigrants to bring extended family members to the province.

The new regulations are immediate and it is believed that applicants currently in the system will not be "grandfathered" through the new scheme.

For some this means that though they were eligible for approval when they applied to immigrate to Saskatchewan, they will no longer qualify.

"We are not opposing the change, we are opposing the way it has been implemented," said Mozzam.

"They gave us no time to adjust, that's what our problem is, and the requirements they are implementing are too hard to meet."

Homicide

Murder charge laid in father's slaying

Police have laid charges in the death last year of a 29-year-old Edmonton man who was at home with his infant daughter.

John Stanley Kwiatkowski was found by his wife on April 14, 2011, when she returned from a night shift at work.

She also found their baby girl with non-life-threatening injuries.

Police say the accused, a youth at the time, is charged with second-degree murder and break-and-enter with intent to commit an indictable offence.

They say the break-in appears to have been random.

The accused is currently serving time in a Saskatchewan jail for an unrelated conviction.

He cannot be named under provisions of the Youth Criminal Justice Act.

Police say there are no other suspects.

Tweeting it up for a good cause

Tweetups are about meeting the real people behind digital avatars, but Friday's event will also be for a good cause.

Organizer Joel Sopp is using the fifth Regina tweetup, an event meant to introduce people who might only know each other on Twitter, as a way to raise money for the Canadian Breast Cancer Foundation.

Sopp is a member of a Run for the Cure team and will be accepting donations at the event. The run will take place this September.

Called "TeamEffCancer," Sopp got the name for his group of runners from, of course, Twitter. "Two years ago, I started using the hashtag #effcancer on Twitter."

Sopp says he first saw the hashtag when a girl used it while describing her own family's battle with cancer. "It looked like she was really upset at what cancer was doing to her family. But it turned out to be an empowering tweet."

You can interpret the "eff" however you want, says Sopp, whose aunt battled breast cancer successfully. "Some think of the four-letter word, others think of 'fight.'"

Sopp is an insurance broker with the Royal Bank of Canada and lives in the town of Shaunavon. He organized his first tweetup in 2010 when he and two Twitter friends met for coffee. Since then, #YQR Tweetups has grown into a sponsored event, last time packing in 140 people.

Sopp says that tweetups are important because people need to communicate in ways other than tweets to really get to know each other.

"Trying to translate everything you have to say in 140 characters can sometimes be an obstacle," says Sopp. "But tweetups allow you to bring the social back to social media. It's about creating bonds and community. That's the biggest thing that tweetups offer."

Friday's tweetup

Anyone can attend a tweetup and admission is free.

- Friday's tweetup is being held at Beer Brother's and runs from 8-10 p.m.
- Information about the Canadian Breast Cancer Foundation CIBC Run for the Cure will be available at the event.

Crime

Alleged ring thief found snoozing at scene of crime

Chatham-Kent police made an easy arrest after a man allegedly broke into a building, stole a ring and fell asleep before he could make his escape.

Officers responded to a break-and-enter around 10:30 a.m. Wednesday when the owner found a 19-year-old man sleeping inside the building on Wallace Street in Wallaceburg.

According to police, the man forced his way into the building from the back door, causing about $50 in damage, and another $50 from cutting the alarm-system wires.

After searching the man, police found a gold ring that was stolen from a jewelry box in the building and a bag of what they suspected was cocaine.

He's been charged with break-and-enter, mischief under $5,000, theft under $5,000, possession of property under $5,000 obtained by a crime and drug possession.

Lung-transplant recipient celebrates new lease on life

Inspiring. Hélène Campbell became the face of organ donation after attracting celeb endorsements

A young woman whose inspirational advocacy for organ donation has garnered attention around the world gushed with gratitude Thursday at her first public appearance since receiving two lungs seven weeks ago.

At a news conference, Hélène Campbell did a little happy dance to demonstrate her remarkable recovery from near death.

"I've named my lungs 'Gratitude' — attitude with a little 'grrr,'" Campbell said. "I'm just so grateful."

In the space of six months, Campbell, 21, of Ottawa, went from skydiving and travelling abroad to someone who could barely walk.

She was diagnosed with a degenerative hardening of the lungs — ideopathic cystic fibrosis — a condition of unknown cause that was quickly suffocating her. On April 6, after just 10 weeks on the organ waiting list, she underwent a transplant.

On Thursday, a small scar on her throat and a husky voice were the only obvious signs of her dramatic journey.

"My voice is not fully back — it's a little more raspy than usual, but I have a voice and I'm able to breathe and that for me is a miracle," she said.

"I can take a shower standing up — that is the best thing I've been able to do in a long time."

Campbell became the unofficial face of organ donation in Canada after attracting celebrity endorsements for her cause, including from singer Justin Bieber, whose tweets set the campaign alight, and TV host Ellen DeGeneres.

The response has been a significant increase in people signing up to be organ donors in places as far-flung as Louisiana and Australia.

"It just took the right story to get through to people," said Campbell, who vowed to keep up her advocacy for organ donation.

Lung-transplant recipient Hélène Campbell demonstrates her wave dance during a press conference at Toronto General Hospital on Thursday.

TARA WALTON/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Waiting for the new lungs was incredibly difficult, Campbell said, noting many people die before a suitable organ can be found.

Campbell said she was curious as to whose lungs she received, but said it would be up to the donor's family to decide if they wanted contact with her. Her fervent wish, she said, was that they know the extent of her gratitude.

"My hope is that someone will somehow let them know how thankful I am — that through their loss I have life," Campbell said.

Suspect in landmark missing-child case

Man confesses. After 33 years, mystery of first missing kid on a milk carton may at last have an ending

A New York City law-enforcement official said Thursday that a man has told police that he suffocated Etan Patz, the six-year-old boy whose disappearance on his way to school in 1979 helped give rise to the missing-children's movement that put youngsters' faces on milk cartons.

Pedro Hernandez was picked up late Wednesday in New Jersey, according to a law-enforcement official, and was being questioned Thursday by the Manhattan district attorney's office.

Hernandez worked at a convenience store in the neighbourhood where Patz lived, and moved to New Jersey shortly after the boy disappeared 33 years ago, according to a second law-enforcement official. He has been tied to the case in the past, and investigators recently received a phone call that tipped them off to him, the officials said.

Hernandez said he suffocated the boy, then put the body in a box, walked down the street and left the box in an alley, the first official said. No body or box has been recovered, and Hernandez has not been charged.

Investigators said they were still trying to confirm details of the man's story. The development came just before the Friday anniversary of Etan's disappearance, when detectives typically receive a landslide of hoaxes and false leads.

"Let me caution you that there's still a lot of investigating to do," Mayor Michael Bloomberg said.

A woman who answered the door at Hernandez's Maple Shade, N.J., home confirmed he was in custody.

Get ready for local 10-digit dialing

May 2013

As part of a decision by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) to add a NEW Saskatchewan area code (639), 10-digit dialing for local calls will become mandatory in May 2013.

How it works

- All local calls will require 10 digits—the area code followed by the 7-digit number.
- Dialing 1 is not required when placing a 10-digit local call.
- Numbers already assigned the 306 area code will not change.
- Special numbers such as 911, 611 and 411 will continue to be 3-digit numbers.
- Local calling areas and Long Distance calls will stay the same.

10-digit dialing is available now with SaskTel, allowing customers to prepare for the transition to mandatory 10-digit dialing coming in May 2013.

Norway massacre

If found sane, killer will not appeal verdict

The Norwegian right-wing extremist who has admitted to killing 77 people in a massacre last year said Thursday that he doesn't plan to appeal the verdict if an Oslo court deems him sane.

Two psychological examinations carried out before the 10-week trial started reached opposite conclusions on whether Anders Behring Breivik is psychotic — the key issue to be resolved during the trial, which began in mid-April.

Breivik has confessed to the July 22 massacre when he gunned down 69 people at a youth retreat on Utoya island after setting off a bomb in central Oslo that killed eight others. But he denies criminal guilt for the rampage, saying the victims had betrayed their country by embracing immigration.

The self-styled anti-Muslim crusader has strongly contested the psychological evaluation that deemed him insane for fear it would undermine his ideological reasoning.

"If I'm found sane, I have no grounds to appeal," the 33-year old suspect said at the end of Thursday's proceedings in Oslo.

Confident Canadians warm to economic prospects: Survey

Indexes. Consumer confidence rises with the summer temperatures: Business consultancy TNS

Canadians are warming to signs of improvement in the economy, according to the latest survey by international business consultancy TNS.

TNS said Thursday that its overall consumer-confidence index jumped more than three points to 98.8 in May from 95.4 in April.

"It seems that Canadians have woken up about the economy and are liking what they see," said Norman Baillie-David, vice-president of TNS in Canada and director of the marketing and social-research firm's monthly tracking study.

"Since the beginning of the year, confidence has been flat, or just waffling up and down as Canadians didn't seem to be preoccupied with economic concerns," Baillie-David added.

"This most recent and significant jump bodes well for the summer months."

The consumer-confidence index tracks Canadians' attitudes about the economy each month and is part of a global study conducted by TNS in 18 countries.

In the latest survey, a total of 1,027 nationally representative Canadian adults were interviewed between May 14 and 17. Pollsters say a survey of this size is accurate within plus or minus 3.1 percentage points 19 times out of 20.

The buy index, which measures the extent to which Canadians feel whether now is a good time to purchase a big-ticket item such as a car or a major household appliance, rose only slightly to 94.2 from 93.6.

"Canadians won't be rushing in droves to retail outlets just yet, but our numbers definitely show signs of cautious optimism and, hopefully, the beginning of a trend," Baillie-David said.

Economic expectations

The TNS present-situation index, which measures how people feel about the economy right now, climbed five points from 94 in April to 99.2 in May and is the highest it's been since July 2011.

- The TNS expectations index, which measures people's outlook for the economy six months from now, was up four points to 102.7.

Facebook. Site launches camera app for iPhone

Facebook's rocky initial public offering hasn't stopped life at the world's biggest online social network. On Thursday, the company unveiled a camera app for the iPhone.

The app can be downloaded from Apple's App Store and works like most other camera applications for smart phones. To take a photo, you tap a camera icon in the upper-left corner of your screen, aim and shoot. You can then add filters, crop or tilt your photo, and share it on Facebook.

The new app is similar to Instagram, the photo-sharing app Facebook is in the process of buying for $1 billion US. The acquisition, however, has not yet been completed

Facebook didn't give details on when it might release a version of the app for phones that run on Google's Android operating system.

WHOLE LOTTA LIKES FOR FACEBOOK LOVE

THE LIST
Neil Morton
Metro

1 Mark Zuckerberg marries: The 28-year-old multi-billionaire Facebook founder went and got hitched on the weekend, tying the knot with Priscilla Chan in the backyard of his Palo Alto, Calif., home. Naturally, he changed his status to married on his FB page, and a picture from the ceremony he posted has garnered more than a million "likes."

2 Elton John: The iconic singer is coming to Peterborough, Ont., of all places, on Saturday, Sept. 8. Tickets go on sale Friday at 10 a.m. for the concert at MemorialCentre.ca. Now I live in Peterborough and can tell you we haven't seen anything like this. Ever. It will take a rocket man to land tix.

3 Niagara Falls fall: A man survived a 57-metre fall from the Canadian side of Niagara Falls on Victoria Day, becoming only the third person to have gone over without a safety device and lived. The dramatic rescue involving a crane comes three weeks before daredevil Nik Wallenda's highly anticipated high-wire walk over Horseshoe Falls.

4 HuffPo turns one: A year ago this week, the news-aggregation blog Huffington Post kicked off its international expansion with the launch of its Canadian edition. A who's who of guests including Conrad Black, Jim Flaherty, Olivia Chow, Erica Ehm and Arianna Huffington herself were at a birthday shindig at their T.O. headquarters Wednesday night. I was there too but I was a who-dat.

5 Charles & Camilla: It was no Will and Kate visit in terms of hoopla and number of fans, but Canadians welcomed Charles and Camilla here this week as part of Queen Elizabeth II's Diamond Jubilee tour marking her 60th year on the throne. In Toronto, they even took a ride on a TTC bus, getting a glimpse into what us commoners deal with.

6 Celebrity Apprentice finale: Crooner Clay Aiken was runner-up on American Idol in 2003 so it was fitting he would be runner-up in the Celebrity Apprentice finale, which comedian Arsenio Hall won when Donald Trump picked him. Arsenio not only won $250,000 for his Magic Johnson Foundation charity, but paved the way for his comeback to the late talk-show world. Bring it.

7 Paul O'Sullivan: The veteran Canadian actor, who died in a car crash last Friday, was a comic genius — having been a longtime performer with the Second City improv troupe and appearing in many TV comedies. He also taught improv classes, and I had the pleasure of taking one. He was funny, humble and encouraging all at once — teaching us that laughter really is the best medicine.

8 Build the Enterprise: The USS Enterprise is a fictional ship, but is it possible that some day it could become non-fiction? Buildtheenterprise.org details how it could actually be built, and the man behind it says a fully functional Enterprise is only 20 years away if we put in the effort. Oh, and $1 trillion.

9 Howard Stern: Stern made a seven-year-old boy rapper cry on America's Got Talent when he hit the X-buzzer as judge after only a few seconds. But then the shock jock climbed the stairs to hug the boy and give him a pep talk, saying, "No one likes hitting the X on a seven-year-old. You're very brave to get up there." A softer side of Stern, at least for a few seconds.

One (and possibly the only) reason to see MIB3: Josh Brolin's Tommy Lee Jones impression. HANDOUT

Third time's not the charm

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

MIB3. Latest alien instalment from Will Smith falls flat despite a scarily good Tommy Lee Jones impression from Josh Brolin

Richard: Mark, I was six when Apollo 11 happened and was incredibly bored by the whole thing. I couldn't understand why the shows I liked were being preempted for moon launch coverage. The Cape Canaveral takeoff plays a big part in MIB3 and I felt like I was six again. Not filled with wonder but wishing I was watching something else. The movie has its moments, but by and large didn't work for me. You?

Mark: The movie was uneven to say the least. I tend to like time travel plots and I enjoy anything set in the '60s but there was a lot of dead space and repetition. But I was impressed with the art direction and Josh Brolin's scarily accurate Tommy Lee Jones impression.

RC: If this acting thing doesn't work out for Brolin he does have a future as a Tommy Lee Jones impersonator. He could do weddings and Bar Mitzvahs and make a fortune. He's that good. But I felt that despite a good bad guy, some cool creatures and Brolin, the movie didn't have the charm or the energy of the first two movies. It reminded me of another effects laden Will Smith movie — Wild Wild West.

MB: And I thought Will Smith really walked through this one as did Tommy Lee Jones. But the actor who stole the show for me was Michael Stuhlbarg who plays the autistic cosmic seer Griffin. A completely original performance of a completely original character. And Bill Hader's take on Andy Warhol made me laugh.

RC: Absolutely. Both are bright spots. I also enjoyed Smith literally hurtling through time, the idea that Mick Jagger is an alien sent to the planet to breed with Earth women and the battle in the Chinese restaurant. All cool moments, but the magic of the first film is gone — even the fun stuff in this film seems to evaporate as soon the next scene starts — and don't even get me started about the ending.

MB: Even the film's tone has a stop/start feel to it. The movie isn't quite a comedy, not quite an action flick. The original got this mix just right, the sequel was close, but the third time is not the charm.

Synopsis

As the third instalment opens, Boris the Animal — a notorious intergalactic serial killer — is forty years into a life sentence. He's locked away in the only place that will hold him, a super high security prison on the moon. After a daring escape he plans a full scale invasion of earth, but first he wants revenge on the man who put him in jail, MIB agent K (Tommy Lee Jones). The only way to thwart Boris's evil plan is for Agent J (Will Smith) to go back in time to 1969 and stop Boris.

2 SCENE

Scene in brief

Efron's revealing role

Zac Efron says he felt uncomfortable filming his revealing role in The Paperboy — and that's the way he wanted it. The High School Musical actor moves into grown-up territory with the film by Precious director Lee Daniels, which is screening at the Cannes Film Festival. It's a swampy slice of Southern gothic set in the 1960s, with Efron as an aspiring writer helping his journalist brother (Matthew McConaughey) investigate a possible miscarriage of justice, and falling for Nicole Kidman's sultry femme fatale.

Horror

Chernobyl Diaries

Director. Bradley Parker

Stars. Jesse McCartney, Olivia Dudley

There isn't much redemption in watching a film like Chernobyl Diaries. Then again, there's not supposed to be. A gratuitous spectacle set at the now-abandoned site of the world's worst nuclear disaster, a group of ill-equipped tourists get stranded only to discover they're not alone. Oren Peli's (Paranormal Activity) script isn't wholly original, but mere suggestion and shaky cinematography will likely be enough to sell many tickets.

Drama

The Hunter

Director. Daniel Nettheim

Stars. Willem Dafoe, Sam Neill, Morgana Davies

In this contemplative thriller, Willem Dafoe plays a professional hunter hired by a biotech company to track down and kill the last remaining Tasmanian Tiger. The Hunter feels like two movies — the better one focuses on Dafoe's existential man-against-tiger journey. He is terrific fighting against the primordial forces of nature. That's the intriguing part. Unfortunately, when it narrows to focus on his paternal feelings for the family he rents a room from, the movie becomes less interesting.

Master of her 'Make-Believe'

Santigold. When it comes to spreading positivity, this pop princess is totally unstoppable

PAT HEALY
scene@metronews.ca

Santigold became cemented into the lore of summer music three years ago. It all started when an eccentric guy dancing alone on a patch of grass far away from the stage at the Sasquatch Music Festival attracted hundreds of ecstatic revelers to join him, and eventually 5.9 million viewers on YouTube. All the while, singer Santi White was chanting a triumphant chorus of "I've got to be unstoppable."

"That was amazing," says White, reflecting back on the moment. "When we were onstage, we noticed something far off in the distance and just saw this huge part of the crowd running across the field, and I remember afterward we were like, 'Did you see that? What happened?' And then when somebody sent it to me on YouTube I couldn't believe it. I've heard that the video has been used in leadership classes."

This moment is a good metaphor for everything that the music of Santigold represents. The songs are playful and fun, but they are firmly rooted in the notion of spreading positivity.

Releasing a self-titled debut in 2009, Santigold toured for two years and built a loyal following, so that when she released her sophomore album, Master of My Make-Believe earlier this month, the response was not entirely unlike the dancers running across the field to join in on the fun.

"It's great as an artist, starting out, to just spend some time building a fan base," she says. "I was really grateful that the demand was there for so long."

The live show is equally deserving of that demand, with its cross of high energy and high camp. Robotic backup singers flank White and occasionally bust into funny, old-school dance moves. Backup musicians wear rubber flat-top wigs, making them look like comic book versions of ancient Egyptians. Oh, and there's also a two-person horsey that comes out to dance.

"I just closed my eyes one day and I saw lassos and a horse, and I was like, 'We need lassos and a horse!' and everybody looked at me like I was crazy," she says of the eureka moment. "And then me and my girls went online and we found this cool horse outfit and we were like, 'That's the one!' I wanted it to be theatrical in a very do-it-yourself sort of way, like a high school play."

Master of My Make-Believe opens in a call to arms, with the song, GO! against electronic pulses and jungle drums, Santi White sings about how haters have tried to steal her power away, "but they couldn't take it."

"There's truth to all of these songs," she says, "and this one is just watching people in the super mainstream pick and choose and take bits of what's going on in the underground. ... Also, that song is kind of like a tongue-in-cheek fun song. They're kind of like mantra songs for me, where you just need to be like, 'I'm the best!' Especially when you're working on a new record, and you really don't feel like that.

"There's just times when you don't feel like that, and it's nice to be able to sing songs like that to make yourself feel good."

Choice of Weapon

The Cult Return. Again.

SOUND CHECK
Alan Cross
scene@metronews.ca

Ian Astbury is home — sort of. Reclining in a chair at the back of an appropriately dark downtown club, the singer of the Cult is happy to be back in Ontario where he spent his early years in Hamilton and later years in Toronto.

Now living in LA, he's excitedly talking about the new Cult album, Choice of Weapon, part of which was produced by Canadian Bob Rock.

This reunion seems to be sticking.
(Ruefully) Reunion (laughs). We've been 'reconvening' for seven years. The first one, '95 through '99, I needed time. I needed to walk away. In '99 we signed to Warner Brothers and the industry just went 'kablooie'. It was a difficult time to come back. Then the Doors thing (a semi Doors reunion with Ian as singer) came along. Then I just started popping around doing stuff. There was Trent Reznor. We were potentially working on a group together…

Wait, wait! What potential group with Trent Reznor?
We were kind of toying with the idea of doing something at one point. He was sniffing around. I think he was looking for what his next move was going to be. I'd love to work with Trent at some point, but we'll see.

You've had the same rhythm section in the Cult for a while.
The Cult has actually had several careers within our 31 years. We fought to keep this (incarnation) together.

This is also the most prolific version of the Cult with albums, EPs, reissues all coming over the last couple of years.
I think we just got confident in terms of not judging (the material) before it came out. I'm the worst critic. I criticize it before it's even been written. Working with the Doors was part of this new confidence.

How did the Super Bowl commercial (the mash-up featuring Flo Rida and She Sells Sanctuary) come about?
Budweiser approached us. It's pitched to us as 150 million viewers. We thought this was an amazing opportunity to put the band's name out there. It actually helped me pay back my publishing deal. I signed the worst deals in the '80s. They're still playing it, too.

Where and when your band's brand comes up in the culture, you don't get to choose.

Choice of Weapon is out now.

J.Lo and her boyfriend to get reality show: Report

While rumours swirl that Jennifer Lopez won't return as a judge on American Idol, she's just signed a deal with the Oxygen Network for a reality show, according to the New York Post.

But the show won't focus on Lopez, sources say. It will instead be about her boyfriend, Casper Smart, who was recently promoted to choreographer for Lopez's upcoming tour, as he "whips her other backup dancers into shape."

Lopez and Smart reportedly plan to keep the focus on their "professional relationship" on the show.

Brad Pitt's pre-bachelor party?

MONICA WEYMOUTH
scene@metronews.ca

Although he insists there's no date set for his wedding to Angelina Jolie, Brad Pitt has been treating the Cannes Film Festival like a bit of a bachelor party.

At a black-tie after-party for his new film Killing The Softly, the actor partied with everyone from Kylie Minogue to P.Diddy — who stopped by for a congrats drink before getting back to his yacht — and put back some expensive booze with Jolie nowhere in sight.

"With Brad's impending wedding it almost had the feel of a sophisticated pre-bachelor party, with bottles of $390 Johnnie Walker whisky and plenty of cigars," a guest, who we assume didn't arrive by yacht, tells Us Weekly.

"It was definitely a night for Brad to remember."

You'd think so. But then again, swanky whiskey with Diddy on the French Riviera might be Brad Pitt's equivalent of warm wine coolers with the cat.

Simon would say what during sex?

Paula Abdul insists she could never have an intimate relationship with former boss Simon Cowell, despite what his unauthorized biography might say.

"According to him, we did a lot of hanging out," she tells Wendy Williams in an interview. "But I've got to tell you something, it would never ever happen because he's selfish and he'd be a selfish lover and he'd call his own name out during sex if it ever happened."

Bar wants us to feel sorry for her

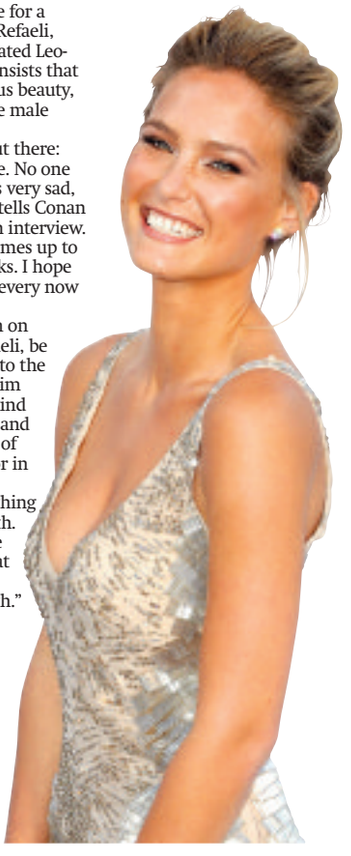
It's hard out there for a supermodel. Bar Refaeli, who previously dated Leonardo DiCaprio, insists that despite her famous beauty, she gets very little male attention.

"Let's put it out there: no one hits on me. No one flirts with me. It's very sad, actually," Refaeli tells Conan O'Brien during an interview.

"A guy who comes up to me (directly) works. I hope that will happen every now and again."

But if you plan on approaching Refaeli, be sure you've been to the dentist: "I want him to be sweet and kind with good values and morals," she says of what she looks for in a guy.

"But the first thing I notice is his teeth. I have a fetish. He has to have a great smile and really white, bright teeth."



Stone faces lawsuit

A former nanny is suing Sharon Stone over allegations of labour violations and derogatory comments the actress supposedly made about the woman's race, according to Radar Online.

Erlinda Elemen's suit claims that Stone told Elemen, who is Filipino, not to talk to Stone's children because she didn't want them to "talk like you."

Elemen also alleges that Stone said Filipino people were "stupid" and wouldn't allow her to have a bible in the house. She also claims she was terminated for no reason after a dispute over accepting overtime wages. Elemen is seeking unspecified damages.

I'm assuming with the ease of downloading, the idea of an age limit on viewing movies is for the most part out the window.

Back in my underage days, the mere thought of a movie being "Rated R" was a call to arms. We had to try to see it — even if it meant risking being kicked out of the movie theatre.

I'm proud to say the first restricted flick I successfully attended was Saturday Night Fever. Not only was it a great film, it had a soundtrack that spoke of the times.

Hearing that Robin Gibb passed away last weekend got me watching it again (yes, I own it now) and thinking of when all the Bee Gees were Stayin' Alive.

With Robin gone to the big disco in the sky I plan on raising a toast to his talent tonight with a glass of the California's 2010 Big House Red ($10.95 - $12.99).

Combining an insane blend of more than a dozen grapes, it's a fruit bomb that slaps the palate with a burst of blackberry/strawberry fruit and just a touch of spice that easily harmonizes with casual dining in between spins on the dance floor. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. Straight-Up Deviled Eggs. Elizabeth Karmel shares her classic recipe for a fave

When I think about summer, I think about deviled eggs. Beginning with Easter and going straight through September, just about every activity — from camping and cookouts to beach vacations — can be enhanced by a plate of deviled eggs.

It's really just a matter of swapping the garnish to fit the activity or mood.

If I am feeling down-homey, I add pimento cheese to my basic deviled egg mixture. If I want to spice it up, I add pureed chipotle. For the right occasion I'll even get a little fancy and top deviled eggs with caviar.

Still, no matter how good embellished deviled eggs are, my favourite remains what I call "straight-up deviled eggs." They are as advertised — classic and simple. One of the beauties of deviled eggs is how well they travel. That's why I call them party eggs.

Ingredients

Start to finish: 30 minutes (plus overnight chilling)

- 1 dozen large eggs
- 1/3 cup mayonnaise
- 4 tbsp unsalted butter, softened
- 1/4 cup strong Dijon mustard (such as Amora or Maille)
- Zest of 1/2 lemon
- 1 tsp fresh lemon juice
- Pinch garlic powder
- 2 to 4 shakes hot sauce
- Salt
- Smoked paprika or minced fresh chives

1. Fill large bowl with cold water.

2. Place eggs in a large saucepan and cover with cold water. Bring to a boil, cover, then turn off the heat. Let the eggs sit for 15 minutes. Drain the eggs, then transfer them to the bowl of cold water. Let them sit for about 10 minutes, or until cool to the touch.

3. Carefully peel eggs, keeping the whites intact. Cut in half across the middle or lengthwise, depending on your desired final presentation. Use your fingers or a small spoon to gently scoop out the yolks into a medium bowl. Set the whites aside on a platter or deviled egg plate, then cover and refrigerate.

4. Use a fork to mash the yolks until all large pieces are broken up and smooth. Add the mayonnaise, butter, mustard, lemon zest and juice, garlic powder and hot sauce. Stir well. Taste and season with salt. Transfer the mixture to a pastry bag or plastic zip-close bag and refrigerate overnight.

5. Just before serving, snip off the tip of the piping bag (or one of the bottom corners of a zip-close bag) and squeeze the deviled egg mixture into the egg whites. Alternatively, you can use a small spoon to fill the egg white "boats" with the yolk mixture, but the presentation is less attractive. Sprinkle the eggs with smoked paprika for classic eggs, or chives for a fancier version. Serve chilled. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/ ELIZABETH KARMEL (GRILLING AND SOUTHERN FOODS EXPERT AND EXECUTIVE CHEF AT HILL COUNTRY BARBECUE MARKET RESTAURANTS IN NEW YORK AND WASHINGTON, AS WELL AS HILL COUNTRY CHICKEN IN NEW YORK).

Here is a take on Rio de Janeiro's sausage-on-a-bun, which is popular on the city's beautiful beaches. Grilled sausages are smothered with a tasty grilled vegetable topping and sprinkled with fresh tomatoes.

Ingredients

- 500 g (1 lb) asparagus, trimmed and cut into bite-size pieces
- 1 large onion, halved and sliced lengthwise
- 1 sweet pepper (any colour), seeded and thinly sliced lengthwise
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) olive oil
- 20 ml (4 tsp) balsamic vinegar or red wine vinegar
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) dried oregano
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- 4 fresh pork sausages (about 500 g/1 lb)
- 4 sausage buns, halved horizontally
- 1 tomato, chopped

1. In bowl, toss asparagus, onion, sweet pepper and oil; transfer to a grill basket. Place grill basket on greased grill over medium heat; close lid and grill, stirring occasionally, until tender and lightly marked, about 15 minutes.

2. Return vegetables to bowl; toss with vinegar, oregano, salt and pepper.

3. Grill sausages alongside vegetables, turning frequently, until browned and meat thermometer registers 71 C (160 F), about 25 minutes.

4. To serve, place a sausage in each bun; top with vegetables and tomato. THE CANADIAN PRESS/ FOODLAND ONTARIO

Foot fault

After a spell of chilly weather, many are keen to unleash their bare feet as the temperatures climb, showing off their tootsies at restaurant patios while soaking up the rays.

But whether you're cruising solo or among a packed crowd, those in the business of good manners agree that feet on public seats, especially in places where we eat, is a faux pas.

"As soon as you get into public areas ... it's no longer yours. It belongs to everybody," said Suzanne Nourse, founder and owner of The Protocol School of Ottawa and co-author of The Power of Civility. "Etiquette to me, the true meaning of etiquette, it's not about the knife and fork: it's how we treat other people. And putting your feet up — where somebody else is going to sit down in a few minutes — is inappropriate."

Party train back on the rails for 100th Grey Cup

CFL. Organizers make plans to recreate wild CFL celebrations in Toronto 64 years ago

The year was 1948. Louis St. Laurent had just become Canada's 12th prime minister, gas was 26 cents a gallon and you could buy a loaf of bread for 14 cents.

And oh yes, a horse was apparently ridden into the lobby of Toronto's Royal York Hotel following Calgary's 12-7 win over the Ottawa Rough Riders at Varsity Stadium. Meanwhile Stampeders fans, most of whom arrived in town on a train, partied on the street.

The three-day trip aboard a 14-car train named the Stampeder Special with 250 fans, chuckwagons and horses made national headlines.

It will happen again if a group of CFL fanatics have anything to say about it. To help celebrate the 100th Grey Cup, the infamous train ride is being recreated by members of the Calgary Stampeders Grey Cup Committee.

The wild west came to Toronto in 1948 when the Stampeders swept to town with their chuckwagons for the Grey Cup against Ottawa. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

"Back in 1948 you could take a train from Calgary to Toronto but times have drastically changed. There is no passenger train out of Calgary heading east anymore," said Dave Miller, a committee member for 20 years, and one of the organizers of the Grey Cup Train Experience.

"So we went for Plan B. We're going to start the venture in Calgary and take a bus to Edmonton and then catch the midnight train out of there for Toronto on Nov. 19."

Miller hopes Lions, Eskimos, Roughriders and Blue Bombers fans will hop on the train as it makes its way across the Prairies, stopping in Saskatoon and Winnipeg.

The hundreds of fans who took that first trip in 1948 were responsible for turning the Grey Cup into a week-long party, changing the game forever into a national celebration.

No looking back for Rangers in Game 6

The Devils celebrate Ryan Carter's game-winning goal in New York on Wednesday night. BRUCE BENNETT/GETTY IMAGES

Eighteen years ago, Mark Messier set the stage for one of sports' most dramatic moments.

On the eve of the New York Rangers' must-win Game 6 against the Devils in New Jersey in the 1994 Eastern Conference finals, Messier guaranteed his team would force a Game 7 back at Madison Square Garden.

The Rangers not only won, Messier backed up his boast with a hat trick.

Fast forward to now. The teams once more head to a Game 6, in New Jersey on Friday, with the Rangers down 3-2, needing a win to stay alive.

That's where the similarity ends.

Quoted

"Not to disrespect what happened, but that has nothing to do with how we're preparing."

Coach John Tortorella on the Rangers' dramatic win over the Devils in 1994

There is no Messier in the Rangers locker-room to will his team to victory. And this time, New York isn't the star-laden team that ended the franchise's Stanley Cup drought in'94.

The Devils have shown repeatedly in this best-of-seven series they are just as good as their cross-river rivals.

The only game the Rangers dominated was Game 5, and the Devils won, 5-3, to take the lead in the series based on a strong start and a stronger finish. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Aries | March 21 - April 20. You have a way with words and you must use them today to get what it is that you need.

Taurus | April 21 - May 21. If you get the chance to travel today, maybe to some place you have not been in a while, take it, no matter what responsibilities you have.

Gemini | May 22 - June 20. You need to get out into the world and make sure important people know who you are.

Cancer | June 21 - July 22. Let other people worry about the small stuff while you focus on the future and the many wonderful things it has to offer you.

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. You'll come to a decision concerning your next big move. Whatever you decide, you must go for it 100 per cent.

Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. You're now in the perfect position to leave your mark on the world. Make sure it's a positive one.

Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. Old must give way to new sooner or later, and in your case it is most likely sooner. The planets indicate it is time to stop holding on to the past.

Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. Nothing in life is worth getting worked up about – right? Wrong! You're a Scorpio and that means you are passionate by nature.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. The planets warn you are being too hard on yourself. Whatever mistake you made, forgive yourself.

Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. Make an effort to find out why a certain person is behaving in a certain way. They're human, just like you.

Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. You'll have to make a choice of some sort today and it's very much a choice between future and past.

Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. Try to read the signals today. Try to predict what other people are going to do before they actually do it. It's not that hard.
